Senate to resume probe of scandals

House leaders fear opening of 'Pandora's box'

By TJ Burgonio and Michael Lim Ubac

EMBOLDENED BY A Supreme Court ruling voiding portions of President Macapagal-Arroyo's Executive Order No. 464, senators are preparing to rattle skeletons they believe are hidden in government closets, including those in Malacañang.

In the House of Representatives, a senior pro-administration congresswoman yesterday expressed concern the high court decision could "open a Pandora's box," aggravating President Macapagal-Arroyo's problems.

Senate President Franklin Drilon declared he would revive the suspended inquiry by the chamber's committee of the whole into the allegedly overpriced $503-million NorthRail project.

Sen. Rodolfo Biazon, chair of the committee on national defense, has a different target: With EO 464 out of the way, the committee could start sending out fresh invitations to high and low-ranking military officials who had snubbed its hearings into the "Hello Garci" wiretapping scandal.

"We can now start inviting them," Biazon said in an interview, referring to Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Generoso Senga and other military officials.

Militant lawmakers sought the resumption of investigations into questionable acts of the executive.

CHIEF JUSTICE PANGANIBAN: Decision based on Constitution.

SC chief: The only winner is justice

By Armand N. Nocum

CHIEF JUSTICE ARTEMIO Panganiban yesterday squelched speculation that political pressure came into play in the Supreme Court ruling striking down parts of presidential Executive Order No. 464, and said the justices decided the issue without regard for who won or lost politically.

"The only winner here is justice," Panganiban told reporters at the launch of the Judicial Bar and Council's website at the high tribunal's session hall.

Some critics had claimed pressures from Malacañang might have persuaded the high tribunal to come out with a ruling that would appease the public and the lawmakers who petitioned that the EO 464 be declared unconstitutional, while at the same time providing protection for the executive department.

"We decided based on what the Constitution mandates and on the basis of law. We are not particular on who loses or wins," Panganiban said.

"The decision speaks for itself. What we declared void were those provisions in conflict with the Constitution," Panganiban said, referring to Sections 2 (b) and Section 3 of the EO that required officials of the executive department to obtain presidential consent before testifying in [illegible]

INDANG, CAVITE—PRESIDENT Macapagal-Arroyo was heckled here yesterday by a Mass Communication graduate of the Cavite State University, turning the afternoon commencement exercise into a nightmare of protests against her.

Just a few minutes into the President's speech, the student, Maria Theresa Pangilinan, shouted "Patalsikin si (Oust) Gloria" while holding up a red banner with the words "No to Chacha." A member of the Presidential Security Group and two security guards of the university immediately went to where Pangilinan was sitting and confiscated the banner.

The President was visibly stunned but kept her poise and resumed her speech.

Lottery racket rivalry seen in Saudi slays

By Veit Contreras

RIVALRY OVER COMPETING illegal lottery operations has emerged as a plausible motive for the gruesome killings in Saudi Arabia involving a group of Filipino workers.

One of the seven Filipino suspects being detained by Saudi police has admitted to operating a lottery in competition with another run by another Filipino, one of three missing Filipinos whose disappearance coincided with the discovery of butchered body parts in Jeddah two weeks ago.

The seven suspects have admitted to killing the three missing Filipinos, the Department of Foreign Affairs said yesterday, quoting from an April 20 report from Consul General Pendosina [illegible] consulate.

The Saudi police have informed the Philippine consulate in Jeddah that the seven Filipino suspects had revealed how and where they carried out the crime, Consulate's report added.

With this development in the investigation, the Saudi police should have already cleared and released the many other Filipinos who have been detained, the DFA said.

Woman is RP's hero of zero-garbage

By Christian V. Esguerra

A MAN IN A BRIGHTLY COLORED uniform pushes a wooden cart with a cowering roof along the labyrinthine streets of Barangay 54ing in Caloocan City.

For 24 hours daily, he and his fellow "eco-aides" at the city's Environmental Sanitation Services office move from house to house, collecting wastes initially segregated by residents.

Then they proceed to the material recovery facility (MRF) at City Hall where garbage—biodegradable, nonbiodegradable, and residual—is segregated once more. Very little garbage is thrown away. Most of it is either sold or goes back to the earth.

People in the once smelly and riotous barangay of Bagong Silang had never been used to such a discipline. Not until someone showed them how.

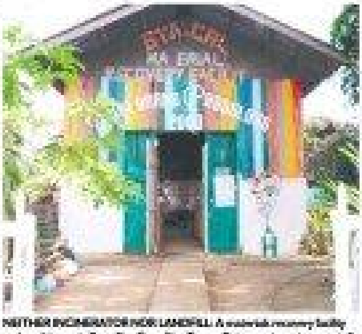

They learned the technique and the patience from Theresa Calo, a trainer at the Mother Earth Foundation, a nongovernment organization advocating environmental protection.

The 59-year-old Calo goes around the country, teaching Filipinos how to dispose of their waste properly. Caloocan, a city of more than a million people, was one of her stops last year.

A report released by the Asian Development Bank in 2004 says Metro Manila generates about 6,700 tons of garbage every day of which 728 tons is recycled or composted. About 6,000 tons is thrown in dumps, on private land, on rivers and creeks, on Manila Bay, or burned.

In the last three years, Calo has [illegible]

Philip Salvador convicted of estafa

By Jocelyn R. Uy

THE SMILE THAT SLIPPED FROM under Philip Salvador's right arm while the court decision on the estafa case against him and his brother was being read out yesterday seemed to portend how things would end for the lackluster movie actor.

Salvador was found guilty of swindling his ex-girlfriend, businesswoman Christina Castillo-Decena, of $100,000 that was to have capitalized a freight and money remittance business to be set up in Hong Kong.

Judge Elizabeth Yu-Guray of the Las Piñas City Regional Trial Court Branch 202 sentenced Salvador to four to 20 years in prison and ordered him to pay Decena the $100,000 she had raised to bankroll the business.

Salvador's brother, Ramon, was acquitted because of insufficiency of evidence.

"This court, assessing the evidence on record, is of the considered opinion that the prosecution was able to prove that [estafa] was committed and that [Salvador] is guilty beyond reasonable doubt," the 24-page decision read.

But the court said the evidence presented by the prosecution did not establish the participation of Salvador's brother in the crime.

and then ordered the latter's acquittal.

Holding on to wife's hand

Throughout the promulgation, which lasted about an hour and a half yesterday morning, Salvador held on tightly to his wife's hand.

Before the hearing started, he could be heard humming religious songs to himself and reading passages from the Bible that he had brought with him.

When the judge ordered him to stand, Salvador tucked the Bible under his right arm. It slipped and fell to the floor a few minutes into the clerk of court's reading of the decision.

Salvador and his wife remained composed throughout the session, but both seemed to be holding back tears after the verdict was announced.

"There were a lot of errors. I never admitted that I received $100,000 from her [Decena]. But I am happy that my brother was acquitted," Salvador told reporters afterward.

"I don't feel angry at all. We all go through life's storms. All I know is that the Lord is with me always. This is not yet finished. I lift this all up to God," he said.

In her complaint, Decena accused Salvador and his brother of prodding her to invest in a remittance company in 2001. At the time she said she was in a relationship with Salvador.

He allegedly promised Decena that he would take care of marketing and promoting the company's services, using his popularity among the Filipino workers in Hong Kong.

However, Decena was to find out later that the money she had given Salvador in May 2002 to start the business was used for other purposes.

Salvador allegedly confessed to her that he used the money to pay obligations and loans which Salvador had incurred when he ran for vice mayor of Mandaluyong in the 2001 elections.

Salvador's lawyer, Roberto Abad, said they would file a motion for reconsideration.

"The court might reconsider its decision. We will point out the discrepancies in the evidence," Abad said.

Abad said they would take the appeal all the way to the Supreme Court if the verdict is not reversed at the Court of Appeals.

The actor remained free while the appeals process goes on and until the court decision is finally resolved.

With 3 daughters

Decena, who came to the hearing with her three daughters, cried upon hearing the decision. She told reporters that she was happy with Umali's decision because it proved that she was telling the truth.

"My past flashed before my eyes: How I loved him, how I trusted him and how he tricked us," she said.

"When I arrived at the court, I was ready to face whatever the judge's decision was. I feel no regret that he will be jailed. All I can say is he deserves it," Decena said.

Her lawyer, Rizal Ballon, is certain that the verdict will be upheld.

"He was already convicted. It will be difficult to reverse the decision. We have presented solid evidence for his conviction," added Ballon.

2 other cases

Yesterday's decision concerned only one of the three cases of estafa that Decena brought against the Salvador brothers.

In another case brought before the Las Piñas court, Decena claimed that she was deceived by the brothers into investing P1.2 million for a jeepney operation business that Ramon Salvador was to have managed. The case was dismissed in June 2005 and is now on appeal.

In the very first case that Decena filed against Salvador, Decena demanded payment of P33 million that Salvador allegedly borrowed from her in 2002. The case is still ongoing at the Makati court.

Four new stars make their mark on the big screen

SANGSTER, ROSSUM AND BELLE: "Tristan & Isolde," "Poseidon" and "When A Stranger Calls," respectively.

By Nestor U. Torre

FRESH FROM HIS PERformance as the naughty Simon in "Nanny McPhee," child actor Thomas Sangster is appearing anew in the current romantic-action epic, "Tristan & Isolde." He plays the young Tristan (James Franco is his grown-up counterpart).

Thomas' acting debut was in the BBC film, "The Adventures of [illegible]." He followed up with a lead role in the [illegible] original film, "[illegible] Girl," and "The Miracle of the Cards." He then appeared in "[illegible]" and in the action [illegible], "Stalky," [illegible] 2003 Monte Carlo Film Festival.

Nomination

Thomas' first international feature film was "Love Actually," in which he played Liam Neeson's son. His performance garnered a Satellite Award nomination for best supporting actor.

For her part, Camilla Belle is currently starring as a babysitter in distress in "When A Stranger Calls."

Director Simon West picked Camilla for the role over many young actresses because "she has this rare [illegible] quality that a lot of teenagers today don't have anymore, because they grow up too fast."

Camilla found the role very challenging. She observes, "Jill is a very strong character and carries the film on her own. She goes on a very emotional journey—she has to save not just herself, but also the children put in her charge. It's a real roller-coaster."

On the TV screen, Nick Cannon is best known for being the producer and star of his own sketch-comedy variety show, "The Nick Cannon Show," on Nickelodeon. He's won the Nickelodeon Kids' Choice Award for favorite male TV actor.

Breakout hit

On the big screen, Nick's credits include "Monster House," "Shall We Dance?" and his breakout hit, "Drumline." His new film is the Miramax comedy "Underclassman," which he also wrote and executive produced.

He plays a cocky cop who is sent undercover as a student to investigate a murder on campus. [illegible]

Like Nick, Emmy Rossum isn't a [illegible] to movie acting, having won the plum role of Christine in the film version of the hit musical, "Phantom of the Opera."

Proving that she isn't a one-film fluke, Emmy has quickly scored her follow-up assignment in the action-adventure film, "Poseidon."

In the film, a luxury cruise ship capsizes and a small group of survivors find themselves suddenly allies in a battle for their lives. Emmy plays the headstrong daughter of a former mayor of New York City (Kurt Russell).

Courage and stamina

Shooting the survival movie tested Emmy's courage and stamina due to the production's demanding physical requirements, like "swimming 20 feet underwater in a tight corridor, or being whip-lashed across a three-story drop with just a harness." But, Emmy passed those physical tests with flying colors!

Providing quality homes in far-off neighborhoods

By Charles E. Buban

WHILE A NUMBER of big home developers are busy investing in Metro Manila and nearby provinces, one developer has decided to venture as well as lend its expertise in developing communities in far-off locations.

"It's about time home developers turn their attention to these places. Not only can their investment help spur development in these areas, these places are also huge market waiting to be tapped," said Amor Atencio, president of Fiore Builders Realty and Development Corp.

In 2004, FBRDC has entered into a joint venture with spouses Robert and Myrna de Guzman to develop over 16 hectares of land in Maddarulug Sur, Enrile in the province of Cagayan.

"The del Grande Subdivision is the result of this partnership. With its development in full swing, FBRDC is able to bring its experience and building expertise to this project to come up with quality homes that are within reach of its intended market," explained Atencio.

Like a number of its projects in other locations, FBRDC decided that the del Grande Subdivision fall under the mass housing-type category. With a gross area of 16.41 hectares, the subdivision will give the consumer 1,052 units with lot sizes ranging from 80 to 100 square meters and with prices ranging from P310,000 to P420,000.

Attractive to buyers

What will make the del Grande Subdivision attractive to buyers, according to Atencio, is its location. The project, about 10 km from Tuguegarao, sits on a unique terrain that offers a panoramic view of the Cagayan River and the 1,098 km Buntun bridge (the longest bridge in the country after San Juanico in Leyte and Samar).

Yet another Bora love story... can't help it

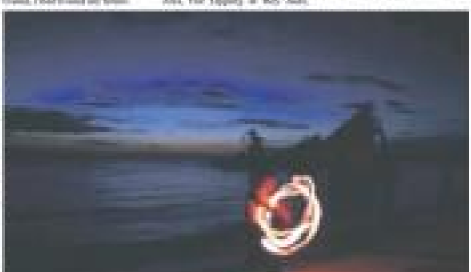

ON A RECENT PRESS JUNKET TO BORACAY, a fellow media junkeer had asked me how long I had been on the island. My unflappable companion and co-columnist Gino de la Paz had jokingly volunteered my answer, replying, "since 1997."

Even in "the Lion City", SMART Communications and PLDT Global made their presence felt. Together with partner Mobile One, SMART and PLDT launched the first truly Pinoy GSM Prepaid Service in Singapore with the introduction of the SMART Pinoy SIM card at Fort Canning Park on March 26 and April 2. The event was considered as the grandest Filipino product launch in Singapore with thousands of Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) in attendance.

Celebrities such as Judy Ann Santos, Ryan Agoncillo, and Dominic Ochoa graced the March 26 event and turned the celebration into one dynamic Filipino party. Matinee idol Richard Gutierrez joined the love team of John Lloyd Cruz and Bea Alonzo in sweetening the April 2 affair. Versatile host, comedian, and videoke master Arnel Ignacio served as master of ceremonies. The stars took part in singing contests, dished out song-and-dance numbers, and participated in photo opportunities with the gathered Pinoys.

As a local SIM card in Singapore, SMART Pinoy offers the lowest local and international text and call rates. Relatives and friends of SMART Pinoy subscribers in the Philippines can now enjoy the one-peso text rate being offered for SMART and Talk 'N Text subscribers for every text message sent to a SMART Pinoy user in Singapore. SMART Pinoy offers electronic load at a very affordable SG$5, SG$10 and SG$15 denomination, as well as the capability to send e-load to SMART subscribers in the Philippines at P30, P60, P115 and P300 denominations. A flat rate of international direct dial access thru 15-81 is also available. To lessen the homesickness of Pinoys in Singapore, they can also download all-Filipino downloadable content and information on-demand like SSS contribution updates, foreign exchange rates and Philippine headline news.

Top executives from PLDT and SMART supported the much awaited launch thru their presence on the two Sundays. PLDT Global President Alfredo S. Panlilio and PLDT Singapore General Manager Enrique "Rey" Gonda Yu were more than satisfied with the turn out for the event. According to Panlilio, "What made this event truly much special is that we were able to bring superior entertainment to the Overseas Filipino Workers in Singapore together with a SIM card that is customized for the needs of OFWs and their families in the Philippines."

With the launch of SMART PINOY in Singapore, SMART and PLDT Global have brought the OFWs a step closer to home.

Super Condolences

Super expresses its sincerest condolences to a brother, a colleague, a friend—a maverick and leader in the fashion industry. As president of the Young Designers Guild, Mel Vergel de Dios has pioneered the vision of young Filipino design becoming globally competitive. Always on the cutting edge and guiding young Filipino design talent, Mel has been instrumental in molding our generation of designers. Last April 20, Mel joined hands with the Lord and is now happily creating designs for the angels above. Lucky for the cherubs but for us here, his sisters, friends and family, who are stuck on earth with clothes that he has masterfully designed, he will be sorely missed. Mel will be remembered not for his death but for his life.
